Contending Copartners in a Maze of Litigation.

August Stallmacher, the German recently indicted by the Grand Jury for arson in the first de-gree, was arraigned yesterday in the Court of Genssions, before Judge Gildersleeve. The pris oner was interested, with Augusta Albrecht, in the shoe business, at No. 247 Tenth avenue. On the Madden, of the Sixteenth precinct, was patrolling his post, his attention was attracted to the shoe store of the prisoner by the smell of smoke. The doors of the store were broken in, when it was discovered that the place was on fire. The flames were promptly extinguished, and an examination of the premises showed that the act was that of an incendiary, there being no less than a dozen different places in the store where fires had been kindled; besides, the crawers, which were supposed to contain stock, had been sprinkled with turpontine. Fire Marshal Sheldon ordered the arrest of Stallmacher, whose hands, as well as garments, smelled strongly of turpentine. The wife of the prisoner and Mrs. Albrecht at the time were absent. The Fire Marshal subsequently discovered that there was an insurance of $2,000 on the stock, which was far in excess of the value of the property on hand at the time of the fire. Messrs. William F. Kintzing and David Solomon, counsel for Stallmacher, stated to the Court that their enent desired to withcraw the plea of net guilty and to plead guilty to arson in the third degree. Assistant District Attorney Bell moved for sentence. Mr. Kintzing begged the mercy of the Court for his unfortunate chent. Judge Gildersleeve said the prisoner had been indicted for arson in the first degree—as serious offence—and that in accepting a pleaof arson in the third degree, a lesser degree or the crime, the mercy of the Court for his unfortunate chient. ## DIVORCE SUITS.

Judge Van Brunt yesterday gave decisions in three divorce suits recently tried before him, in Supreme Court, Special Term. In the suit brought by Margaret Henken against her husband, Carsten Henken, for a limited divorce on the ground of cruelty, the Judge decides that the evidence shows the defendant to have been guilty of such acts of cruelty toward the plaintiff as to render it impossible for the plaintiff to live with him in safety, and he orders a limited divorce accordingly. These parties were married in November, 1875. In the suit brought by Theodor Zimmerman against Catherine Zimmerman he refuses to confirm the referee's report in favor of the plaintiff. The parties were married in July, 1875, and the suit was brought on the ground of alleged adultery. David Haub charged that his wife, Betti Haub, to whom he was married in 1878, concealed from him the fact of her having previously lived as the mistross of another man. She said that he knew all about her previous life when he married her. Jucge Van Brunt anys that he is unable to place much relisance on the story of either and directs a dismissal of the compisiont.

The litigation that has existed between Professor Herr, of photo-Grecian notoriety, and his late coccupied a good deal of the time of the criminal and civil courts. In the first instance Kellogg caused Herr's arrest for alleged false pretences for having obtained $300. This follarge, after a protracted hearing before Justice Duffy at the Essex Market Polico Court, resulted in Herr's discharge. Messrs, Howe & Hummel, counsel for Herr, then commenced an action against Kellogg for malicious prosecution and procured an order of arrest from Judge Lawrence, of the Supreme Court, holding him to bail in $4,000 on this order. Kellogg was arrested last Friday. In Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday Mr. J. H. Marrin, counsel for Kellogg, moved to vacate the order of arrest on the ground that there was no cause of action shown, Kellogg having reasonable cause to prosecute Herr, and in support of this application humerous affidavits were read. Mr. William F. Howe for Herr, followed in opposition, and also submitted a number of depositions setting forth the circumstances of his client's alleged persecution by the defendant and contended that the order of arrest should remain in force. Judge Lawrence took the papers and reserved his occision. civil courts. In the first instance Kellogg caused

HIS SISTER'S HONOR. Christ Bolian, a swarthy, foreign looking fellow, who lives at No. 301 Bleecker street, visited the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday morning to charge with attempting his life a bright boy or sixteen named Edward McDermott. The defendant, who all through the proceedings made little pretence of hiding his hatred of his accuser, explained to the magistrate the motive of his act. He had lived with his family in a tenement house in Bleecker street, of his family in a tenement house in Bleecker street, of which Bolian was the janitor. Their relations were never very friendly, and when they removed to another house in the neighborhood he seemed quite out of sorts with them. Soon young McDermott heard reports of malignant stories the other had put in circulation about the family, and when he inquired further and learned that his sister's good repute had been brought into question by the janitor he determined to call him to account. On Monday night he mot Bolian on Bleecker street and asked if he had uttered the slanders that had been noised about. He received a decided affirmative in answer and a blunt assurance that they would be repeated. At this the youth drewhis clasp-knife in a rage, and before the other could resist had buried the blade in his left breast. Bolian, quite cowed by this unexpected attack, called loudly for assistance, and Detective Flanagan, of the Ninth precinct police station, responded. He found McDermott standing there quite calm and self-possessed. He surrendered himself to the policeman when he came up, with the words:—"I did this because I was forced to defend my sis-

words:—
"I did this because I was forced to defend my sister's name."
When Justice Bixby asked him if he were guilty,

he replied:—
"I am, sir, but his words cut me deeper than I cut LONGSHOREMEN ON STRIKE. When the 'longshoremen or dock laborers of Brooklyn demanded that their employers should in-

Dock; Merchants' Stores, foot of Van Dyke street, and the stores at the foot of Joralemon street. Yesterday, however, Messrs. Woodruff & McLean notified their men that the old rate of wages would be restored. When the men were informed of this they became indignant and refused to work. The men at the Merchants' Stores marched in a body to the number of about one hundred along the warehouse front from the foot of Van Dyke street to the Atlantic Dock Basin. As they did so they threatened the non-strikers and urged them to join their ranks and not to accept of twenty conts an hour.

Police Superintendent Campbell ordered Captain Edward Reilly, of the precinct named, to hold his entire force in reserve and to establish a patrol along the river front. For two or three hours the situation appeared to indicate further trouble, and twenty policemen were added to the Captain's force. The laborers at the Excessior Stores joined the "strikers" in the afternoon, and the latter moved about in squads closely watched by the police.

LAVERIGNE'S CONFESSION.

Lavergne said that he left Paris for London December 21, 1876. At the latter place he took passage on board the steamer Utopis, of the Anchor line, for this city. He was intrusted with $39,000 worth of diamonds by his brother-in-law, which he was commissioned to sell. He represented that he appropriated the proceeds of the sales to his own use. Having squandered all the money in dissipation he was anxious to be sont back to Paris to stand trial for his offence. Insamuch as the French Consul had no jurisdiction in the case Lavergue's extraordinary request could not be complied with and he was set at liberty.

It was in September, 1877, that Lavergue request could not be complied with and he was set at liberty.

It was in September, 1877, that Lavergne was first brought into public notice through his very sensational and melodramatic attempt at self-destruction by shooting himself through the breast. The cause for the act was assigned to be violent jealousy of his wife. After recovering from his wound Lavergne sank again into obscurity. In October, 1878, he reappeared as a prisoner charged with an attempt to kill his sister-in-inw, Maggie Bennett, who had interfered in behalf of her unfortunate sister.

LAVERGNE'S HISTORY.

attempt to kill his sister-in-law, Maggie Bonnott, who had interfered in behalf of her unfortunate sister.

LAVERGNE'S HISTORY.

Lavergne, after being committed on that occasion, narrated to a reporter of the Herald his own strange history. He said he was born in Lorraine, France, in 1849, and brought up in Paris, where his brother-in-law was a well known diamond broker. At the outbreak of the Franco-German war he entered the French service as a spy and was captured by the Germans and imprisoned at Reichstadt. He managed to escape, went to Brazil, where he became a succeasful diamond hunter and speculator in india rubber, and next turned up in Airica, where he tried in vain to join Stanley's expedition from Zanzibar. He Bext set up, his tent in the Portuguese penal settlement at Delagoa Bay and at Mozambique, where one of the native tribes made him their ruler. He became very ill, was taken in a dying state to France, and turned up again in New York in 1876 with $20,000. Here he met Daisy Bennett, alias Hazel Barton, and went to Deadwood, Black Hills, where he made some fortunate mining ventures. Upon his return to this city he married Daisy Bannett.

Lavergne was sent to Blackwel.'s Island for twelve months, and upon his discharge, which was before the end of his term, he made his reappearance as a prisoner in a police court, boing charged with throwing his landord down the stairs of his own house. It appeared that Lavergne had lived in the house under an assumed name, and as soon as the landlord discovered his strange lodger's identity he barred his entrance to his house. Lavergne, however, forced an entrance and a mélée ensued, in which the landlord was signally worsted and sent flying down the stairs.

There was commenced yesterday before Judge Barrett, in Supreme Court, Circuit, the trial of the suit brought by E. B. Rogers and John Fay, Fulton Market fish dealers, against Mrs. Charles E. Schoon-maker, or Mrs. Mary Hasey (which she claims is her true name), and John T. Lynch, the Broadway diamond broker, to recover $3,500, the alleged difference in the value of diamonds formerly in the hands of Mr. Lynch, which were obtained by the plaintiffs on payment of $5,000. As is well known, a criminal suit is still pending against the defendants in which Mrs. Schoonmaker or Mrs. Hascy is still detained as a prisone maker or Mrs. Hascy is still detained as a prisoner in Ludlow street Jail. Messrs. John D. Townsend and John W. West appeared for the plaintiffs, and Col. Spencer for the defendant. Both the plaintiffs gave their testimony at length, reciting all the details heretofore published in the Herallo or their negotiations in connection with the redemption of the diamonds in question. They both positively identified the lady defendant as the woman who.

the diamonds in question. They both positively identified the lady defendant as the woman who, under the name of Mrs. Schoonmaker, induced them to part with their money to enable her, as they supposed, finally to obtain possession or her diamonds, which had, as she said, been given to her by her late husband.

"How do you know she is the same woman?" Colonel Spencer asked Mr. Fay.

"I know it by that nose or hers. Nobody who saw that nose once would ever tail to know it again."

Mr. Rogers stated in the course of his evidence that as soon as he found out that he had been swindled he procured the services of a detective and set out with him to find the lady who had owned the diamonds. He said they found her acting as a saleswoman in a store on Sixth avenue. He says he knew her at once and would have known her among a thousand.

"You made a great mistake," said Colonel Spencer, "and dragged an innocent woman whom you had never seen before to jail, as I will prove before this case is through."

Mrs. Vandilin D. Bassey gestified that no such her the crockery stands no show."

"Why does she want a warrant?"

"She wants father tuk in for 'saulting her; but truth's truth, an' if he 'saulted her I'd like ter know what she did to him. Why, he's blacker'n he's blue. Las' night mother an' Mrs. Muldoon, nex' door, had a fight. When father cum in he saw somethin' was up and kep' still. That made her angrier than ever. She said he'd have no supper, and when he said he'd jis' like a shy at sumthin to eat she hit him right in the eye an' threw a cup an' saucer at his head. He skinned out with a han'ful o' hair gone. Then mother turned on me an' sez, 'You git a warrant by six to-morry mornin'. I've been a hangin' around here ever since daybreak. I dareen't go back widout that warrant."

"Go tell her she can't have one and advise her to behave herself." behave herself."

"No, thank you, Judge; I'm rather young for a fun'ral, but I'd rather wrastle with a famished Ute than go home without that warrant."

He didn't get it though, and hunger was all that took him to the maternal roof when night began to fall.

"and dragged an innocent woman whom you had never seen before to jail, as I will prove before this case is through."

Mrs. Vandlia D. Bassey testified that no such woman as Mrs. Schoonmaker ever occupied a room at her house, No. 208 West Forty-second street, where Mrs. Schoonmaker ciaimed to reside when she was negotiating for the redemption of her diamonds which were on exhibition is court were not worth over $1,500. The last witness examined was Father Zucker, of Canajoharie, in Montgomery county. He told substantially the same story as given in the police court as to his meeting Mrs. Schoonmaker at the Glissy House, and subsequently giving her $3,000 for her diamonds in the hands of Mr. Lynch. He said he was perfectly sure that the lady defendant was this woman. He also told of his having been swindled in a similar manner out of $13,000 by another woman, under somewhat similar circumstances. He had been paid back $7,500, however, but who paid the money he did not know. know.

The trial will be resumed this morning, and will probably occupy the rest of the day.

THE POST OFFICE ELEVATORS.

ENGINEER'S DEPARTMENT,

UNITED STATES POST OFFICE AND COURT HOUSE, NEW YORK, Nov. 24, 1879.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—
In your issue of this date appears an article headed "The Post Office Elevators" and signed "Sufferer," in which the writer makes an attempt to attach a portion if not all the blame to me for the recent accident to one of the elevators in this building, and asks me to reply to two questions which he propounds, either of which shows his utter ignorance of the subject he attempts to write upon. In reply to his first question, which reads, "If the valves at the bottom of the tubes were closed and he had a full steam pressure on, why on earth the tube nearest the elevator should descend to the second tube with such lightning rapidity?" I will say, if the valves at the bottom of the tubes had been closed there would have been no communication between the pressure and elevator. When the elevator is running the pressure and elevator. When the elevator is running the pressure and elevator of the car being regulated by and entirely under the control of the car conductor, by means of a check line running through the car and connected with a valve which admits the pressure to raise the car, or opens the discharge to allow it to descend. As to his second question—"If the pressure was on and the valves closed, where did the water find an exit." I will state that the water found an exit in the opening occasioned by the breaking of the pipe.

In conclusion, I would suggest to "Sufferer" that hereaster, before making a charge of neglect of duty he would inform himself upon the subject he wishes to write upon.

H. BARAGWANATH, Chief Engineer. At a meeting of the American Institute Farmers' Club, held in room No. 24 Cooper Union, yesterday afternoon, Dr. J. Blake White, Assistant Samitary Inspector of the New York Health Department, read a paper on "Commercial Milk; Its Supply and its Adulteration." He treated of the importance of milk as an article of diet, of its being indispensable in the nursery and the kitchen, and of its containing all the elements necessary for the nutrition and development of the tissues in the young. He condemned the adulteration of milk as a very grave offence. He advised farmers to examine closely their wells, in order to see that the water was free from contamination by any deleterious agency.

A resolution was adopted having for its object the organization of a co-operative association of milk producers and milk consumers under the laws of this State, with a capital sufficient to secure to the population of the city an ample supply of good milk at six cents per quart, from the first day of May to the last day or November in each year.

Policeman Cummings, attached to the Eleventh precinct, Brooklyn, arrested John Sweeney on Mon precinct, Brooklyn, arcested John Sweeney on Monday night last on a charge of intoxication. Upon arriving at the station house the sergeant at the desk observed that Sweeney had two cuts on his head. Cummings acknowledged having indicted the injuries with his club, but claimed that he was justified in doing so as Sweeney attempted to strike him with a stone. The morning return from the Eleventh precinct yesterday set forth that Cummings tapped the prisoner "lightly" on the head with his club.
